NHF rewards long-serving, outstanding staff

KLANG: NHF, an automotive replacement parts manufacturer, held its annual dinner recently to honour its long-serving employees.

NHF managing director Chin Jit Sin said: "As the New Hoong Fatt Group continues to grow, we want our employees to grow with the company."

It presented long-service awards to 33 employees — 26 for 10 years of service, and seven for 20 years of service.

The Best Among the Best award was presented to two employees.

The award winners were judged based on attendance; the practice of Kaizen (continuous improvement) and 5S methodology; ideas for improvement in work processes; and the elimination wastage.

Fauzi Yunus emerged the winner in the supervisor category, while Bisram

Singh Thagunna won the worker category. Both were from the metal stamping division.

Fauzi, who joined NHF as a production operator in 1993, was also a recipient of the 20-year long-service award.

Currently a production supervisor, Fauzi said he felt proud and appreciated. "Since joining NHF 20 years ago, I have learnt about time management and the importance of teamwork.

"I was trained for the role of supervisor and to understand the company's goals and the targets for my division," he said.

Chin said: "This kind of dedication and loyalty has contributed to NHF's strength, stability and success.

"As an employer, we want to enrich the careers of our employees.

"We want to be able to have Malaysians working in our overseas operations as we venture out into regional markets."

A firm believer in the power of education to improve one's opportunities in life, NHF encourages and rewards academic excellence among the children of its employees, said Chin.

This year, 12 children received cash rewards for doing well in their UPSR and PMR examinations. A total of RM2,180 was presented to the children during the annual dinner.

The NHF annual dinner was held at the Klang Executive Club. It was attended by about 900 employees.

To add to the fun, there was a best dressed contest, best NHF anthem competition, mini-games and lucky draw.
